

New from LSU PRESS

APRIL 2016

“Margaret Luongo knows full well that the purpose of art isn’t merely to ‘instruct’ or ‘delight’ but to break your damn heart, and over the course of these sixteen incredible stories—gorgeous explorations of longing, loss, and the thin line between creation and destruction—she finds inventive, ever-more-astounding ways of doing so. History of Art is a stunning collection.”

—Joseph Bates, author of Tomorrowland: Stories

$22.50

978-0-8071-6302-3

192 Pages

Available in bookstores and online nationwide

The stories in History of Art examine the definitive, yet paradoxical, preoccupations of humankind—namely art-making and war—and the emotions that underpin both: passion and sentimentality, obsession and delusion, ambition and insecurity, fear and envy.

In addition to the collection’s subjective focus, the structure works to build creative tension. Luongo’s use of nontraditional forms—flash-fiction sequences, a bird-watching guide, a word problem—heightens the sense of trauma and inventiveness found in these stories. In both content and construction, Luongo approaches the ageless themes of creation and destruction with striking novelty, humor, and mastery.

800.848.6224

lsupress.org

orders@longleafservices.org